

Prepositions

Prepositions are words that show where something is positioned in relation to something else or when something happened.

Location

The duck swims on the lake.

Time

We play after school.

Read the passage below and circle the prepositions. There are 18 to find!

The Lake

George and Miller walked to the lake along a narrow path. On his head, George wore the red cap he had been given for his birthday.

"We'd better hurry," George said, looking at his watch. "I told my parents I'd be back before it gets dark. Race you there!"

George started running.

"Hey! Slow down! Miller called, pushing past an overhanging branch.

Before long, the boys arrived. George first and Miller not far behind him. They threw their towels and shoes under a tree. George waded through the water and grabbed the rope that hung over the lake. He held it above his head as he climbed as high as he could up the steep bank.

"Here I go!" shouted George as he lifted his feet from the ground and swung towards the lake.

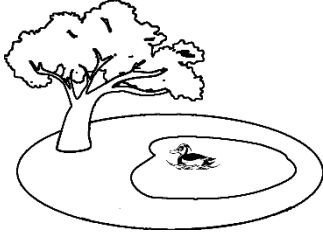

Splash! Under the water George went.

"My turn now!" Miller called excitedly.

Prepositions Answers

Prepositions are words that show where something is positioned in relation to something else or when something happened.

Location

The duck swims on the lake.

Time

We play after school.

Read the passage below and circle the prepositions. There are 18 to find!

The Lake

George and Miller walked to the lake along a narrow path. On his head, George wore the red cap he had been given for his birthday.

"We'd better hurry," George said, looking at his watch. "I told my parents I'd be back before it gets dark. Race you there!"

George started running.

"Hey! Slow down!" Miller called, pushing past an overhanging branch.

Before long, the boys arrived. George first and Miller not far behind him. They threw their towels and shoes under a tree. George waded through the water and grabbed the rope that hung over the lake. He held it above his head as he climbed as high as he could up the steep bank.

"Here I go!" shouted George as he lifted his feet from the ground and swung towards the lake.

Splash! Under the water George went.

"My turn now!" Miller called excitedly.