

Direct and Indirect Speech 1

I like football.

Direct speech tells the reader exactly what words were said by a person.

Speech marks are used to show that it is exactly what the person said.

Harry said "I like football."

Indirect speech tells the idea of what a person said.

The exact words said are not given and so speech marks are not used.

Harry said he likes football.

Write down direct speech in the bubbles.

Then write a sentence with direct speech and another with indirect speech.
