

Singular Possessive Nouns

A possessive noun is a noun that possesses/owns/has something.

The dog's bed = bed of the dog.

To show possession for a singular noun (for example, one dog),
an apostrophe is added before the s.

The dog's bed

Underline the singular possessive noun in each sentence.

Add in the apostrophe in the correct place to show possession.

1. My dads favourite food is pizza.
2. Mum went to the shop because the babys cot had broken.
3. The suitcases wheels were broken so he had to carry it.
4. Kayla looks at her friends new haircut.
5. Two boys were running on the schools oval.
6. The doctors watch and pens dropped on the floor.
7. The coachs plan was to score more goals than the other team.
8. Harrys new dog has three white spots and big ears.
9. The hotels beds are very comfortable.
10. The principals office seemed like a scary place.

Singular Possessive Nouns Answers

A possessive noun is a noun that possesses/owns/has something.

The dog's bed = bed of the dog.

To show possession for a singular noun (for example, one dog),
an apostrophe is added before the s.

The dog's bed

Underline the singular possessive noun in each sentence.

Add in the apostrophe in the correct place to show possession.

1. My dad's favourite food is pizza.
2. Mum went to the shop because the baby's cot had broken.
3. The suitcase's wheels were broken so he had to carry it.
4. Kayla looks at her friend's new haircut.
5. Two boys were running on the school's oval.
6. The doctor's watch and pens dropped on the floor.
7. The coach's plan was to score more goals than the other team.
8. Harry's new dog has three white spots and big ears.
9. The hotel's beds are very comfortable.
10. The principal's office seemed like a scary place.