

Persuasive Writing

Hey Wes!

How are you? It seems like so long since we've caught up. In the first week of school holidays, we (Mum, Dad, Liam and me) are going to Jungle Paradise. I've been there once before. It's like a playground, but a thousand times better. You should see if you're allowed to come along.

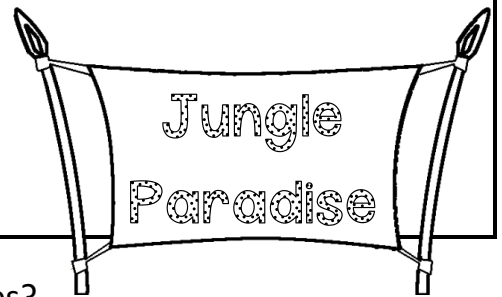

The place is amazing! The entrance is this giant slide that drops you into a foam pit. It's like you've been dropped into the middle of an actual jungle! The number of things you can do there is incredible. Last time we went, we spent the whole day swinging on ropes, spiralling down slides, climb up the walls, and there's even a quicksand pit. Well, it's not actually quicksand, but everything just looks incredibly real. You've never seen anything like it! There's a two-person ride that I really want to go on. They strap you together, winch you up, and then swing you high above the whole place. The view must be incredible up there. I missed out because Liam was too scared, but I just know you'd love it.

We've got a special voucher and so the tickets will only be $10 each. You have to come! The holidays are only a few weeks away so make sure you ask your parents soon.

Talk soon!

PS. Say hi to Aunt Wendy and Uncle Craig for me.

What persuasive language has Maddi used to convince Wes?
