Hands aching, Sal clutched the slippery rope as tightly as she could. "Mum! Dad! I'm scared!" she yelled down as the winch pulled her higher and higher. Her parents were holding each other, waving up to her. Sal could see her dad was shouting something, but all she could hear was the roar of the engine.

Just about everything was covered with water, and rain was still falling. Sal closed her eyes as the strong wind blew her from side to side.
